FROM THE DESK OF SISTER ANN

After the events of the past few weeks of protests and riots, I think that many of us have begun to examine our consciences. I know I have. If you permit me, I would like to share some of my experiences with you.

I grew up in Manhasset when it was still a rather quiet suburb of “The City,” meaning New York. We were probably the closest residential neighborhood to an area known as “the Valley,” where most of the Black Americans lived. We had very little contact with any from that area except in the winter when we went ice skating on Whitney’s pond. Even then we stayed pretty much in separate areas. If truth be told, I was a little afraid of the blacks and with no reason except that I didn’t personally know any; there were none in our all white school.

My first assignment as a Sister was in North Carolina where the Sisters taught in a four-room school. This oldest Catholic community in the state had a grade school, an auditorium and a playground with a set of swings. Our Sisters also taught in the all –black neighborhood at the far end of town, the Parish of St. Joseph, established and served by the Passionist Fathers.

The second or third year that I was there, one of the Sisters who taught the black children had to return in March, to our Motherhouse to renew her vows so I was sent to help the Seniors with their music for Graduation. I was nervous as I walked in and stood in front of these tall, quiet students. I asked them to sing what they had been practicing and was almost knocked off my feet. Their sound was magnificent! It was not hard to perfect their sound. What a wonderful experience!

Toward the end of the school year of 1962, the Bishop informed us that we were to integrate the two schools. We, at the Parish of St. Paul, were to become the Grade School; the black parish, St. Joseph, was to become the High School. Since we were not too far from a military base, a 13-year old school bus was purchased, and high schoolers were to be bussed to St. Joseph’s. It was a tense summer because those involved in the move were told not to say anything. (Luckily, the Sisters returned to Scranton for the summer to pursue further education, to make a Retreat, to help with summer schools or other community activities) so we really didn’t have to answer any questions.

In September, school was postponed one day but the police rode their motorcycles around the property all during the scheduled school hours. The following day, there were small family groups of white and black children and parents. We entered the school without one incident.

I found that the children related well with one another; there was great competition to see who could get the best grades, but this familial competition was encouraging! I loved this experience and found children were all the same, eager to please and to learn, no matter the color on the outside.

FROM THE DESK OF SISTER ANN

The next experience I had with teaching mixed races was the year I taught in New York City. My dad was ill, and I asked to be moved closer so that I could help him. St. Stephen's was a school literally squeezed in between buildings on the East side near St. Francis Church. My 7th -8th Grade classroom was on the fourth floor, so we had a beautiful view of the NY skyline.

That year I had one white child; the rest went from a variety of backgrounds (just learning English). Many were bi-lingual and many parents only spoke Spanish. In this inner-city school, I found the children very respectful and quite creative. Our playground was an asphalt area between buildings—too small to do much of anything. The boys decided to do some break-dancing. I stopped them because they would have destroyed their uniform shirts. I told them that if they could find something to put on the ground that they could “dance” all they wanted. The next day they brought in huge cardboard boxes which they flattened and proceeded to take turns with their skills. The girls and I became their cheerleaders.

From then on most of my encounters with people of different skin colors made no difference. All I know is that no matter what color our skin might be we all bleed the same color. We see others as we want to see them realizing that we are all created equal. God is so very creative that even fraternal twins are not exactly alike.

Be grateful for all of God's creation and enjoy the beauty we have and share on this earth. Here we walk, talk, or have our roots in the ground! All are God's gifts to one another.

UNITED STATES CONFERENCE OF CATHOLIC BISHOPS

President of U.S. Bishops' Conference Issues Statement on Supreme Court Decision on Legal Definition of "Sex" in Civil Rights Law

June 15, 2020

WASHINGTON — The president of the U.S. Conference of Catholic Bishops (USCCB), Archbishop José H. Gomez of Los Angeles, provided a statement on the decision issued today by the Supreme Court of the United States – combining Bostock v. Clayton County, Ga., Altitude Express v. Zarda, and R.G. & G.R. Harris Funeral Homes v. Equal Opportunity Employment Comm'n. The justices ruled that the prohibition on “sex” discrimination in employment in Title VII of the Civil Rights Act of 1964 now prohibits discrimination based on “sexual orientation” and “transgender” status.

Archbishop Gomez's statement follows:

I am deeply concerned that the U.S. Supreme Court has effectively redefined the legal meaning of ‘sex’ in our nation's civil rights law. This is an injustice that will have implications in many areas of life.

By erasing the beautiful differences and complementary relationship between man and woman, we ignore the glory of God's creation and harm the human family, the first building block of society. Our sex, whether we are male or female, is part of God's plan for creation and for our lives. As Pope Francis has taught with such sensitivity, to live in the truth with God's intended gifts in our lives requires that we receive our bodily and sexual identity with gratitude from our Creator. No one can find true happiness by pursuing a path that is contrary to God's plan.

Every human person is made in the image and likeness of God and, without exception, must be treated with dignity, compassion, and respect. Protecting our neighbors from unjust discrimination does not require redefining human nature.

We pray that the Church, with the help of Mary, the Mother of God, will be able to continue her mission to bring Jesus Christ to every man and woman.

On August 23, 2019, the USCCB, joined by other national religious organizations, filed amicus curiae briefs in the cases. They are available at <http://www.usccb.org/about/general-counsel/amicus-briefs/upload/Bostock-8-23-19.pdf> and <http://www.usccb.org/about/general-counsel/amicus-briefs/upload/Harris-8-23-19.pdf>.
